

Official list from the Eastern Band of Cherokee Indians (EBCI) for charitable contributions:

Regarding charitable contributions directly to the EBCI (item I):

A federally recognized Indian tribal government and its political subdivisions are treated like states for certain federal tax purposes. (See IRC 7871)

Tribal governments can be the recipients of income tax deductible charitable gifts, as well as, the recipients of funds deductible from estate and gift taxes.

For a list of federally recognized Indian tribes, see the list annually published by the Department of the Interior in the Federal Register. The most recent list was published in 75 Fed. Reg. 60810 (October, 1, 2010)

Items II through XII are section 501(c)(3) organizations that directly benefit EBCI members and communities.
